We're excited to hear about your project and your interest in seeing how Stable Audio could be a great fit! Please find some feedback on your questions below:

1. This is dependent on how you choose to use/implement Stable Audio. We currently offer 3 options:
 1. Stable Audio via our Platform API. Our API allows you to access our Stable Audio model suite at a per-audio-generation rate. This option does not require additional licensing, and you would be free to use your generations for any purpose and own full rights to your creations forever.
 2. Stable Audio via stableaudio.com. This option provides you with a web UI featuring our Stable Audio models. Since your use case would be considered Enterprise, we would work together on an Enterprise agreement, which may allow custom options for pricing and licensing.
 3. Stable Audio via self-hosting our models. This option allows you to run our Stable Audio models on your own infrastructure, which provides the freedom to use our model to any capacity. This would also require an Enterprise agreement.
2. If you decide to use Stable Audio via our Platform API, yes, you may use your outputs as a catalogue, as you have full ownership of your creations. Otherwise, if you decide to use stableaudio.com or self-host the model, an Enterprise Agreement must be in place to use your creations as part of a catalogue.
3. The same terms would apply based on how you intend to use Stable Audio.

Please let us know if you have any questions or if you'd like me to connect you to our Sales/Solutions team to provide more information on an Enterprise Agreement.

Thank you!

Ticket name: CMLP — licensing question: sublicensing & public performance rights

Product Support: Stable Audio

Issue Type: Legal or Data Inquiry

Ticket description: Hello,

I'm Kamil Skomra, founder of HardbanRecordsLab in Poland. I'm building the Commercial

Music Licensing Platform (CMLP) — a B2B background music service for businesses in hospitality, retail, offices, wellness and healthcare. The platform is currently in development.

The catalogue is our own — we produce it ourselves, and we are evaluating AI music tools for part of that production. We are not looking to resell anyone else's repertoire. Three things about stableaudio.com licence decide whether it fits:

1. Ownership — do we hold the rights in what we generate on your platform, exclusively, worldwide and perpetually, including after a subscription ends?
2. Use as a catalogue — may we include generated tracks in our own commercial music library and license them onward to our business customers? Many terms permit commercial use but separately restrict redistribution as stock or library music, so a pointer to the relevant clause is exactly what I need.
3. Public performance — does the licence cover playback in commercial premises, and would any collecting society royalties (ZAiKS, GEMA, PRS, ASCAP) still be payable by us or by our customers?

To be clear: CMLP is at the evaluation stage, so this is not an offer and commits neither side to anything. If your licence does not allow library use, please just tell me — it saves us both time. I'm happy to sign a mutual NDA before you share anything.

If a short call is easier than a written reply, I'm glad to arrange one.

Hi Kamil,

Thank you for reaching out and for the detailed explanation of CMLP. It sounds like a very interesting project.

Based on your description, I believe our API is likely the best starting point, though I'd like to understand your platform a little better before recommending the most appropriate licensing model.

Would you mind clarifying a few points?

- Will your platform generate new music on demand for each customer, or will you build a catalog of tracks that multiple customers can access?
- Will your customers be able to select or customize music themselves, or will your platform handle music selection automatically?
- Will the music be streamed directly from your platform to the businesses, or will customers download tracks for playback?
- Approximately how many business locations do you expect to support during your initial rollout?
- Which countries do you plan to launch in first?

Once I have a better understanding of your workflow, I'll be able to advise on the most suitable licensing model and answer your questions regarding sublicensing, public performance, and territorial scope more precisely.

If it's easier, I'm also happy to discuss everything over a quick call. You can book a time that works for you here:

Looking forward to hearing more about CMLP.

RE: Dotyczy: wniosku o zajęcie stanowiska w sprawie praw producentów fonogramów w odniesieniu do nagrań generowanych przez systemy sztucznej inteligencji

Do contact contact <contact@hardbanrecordslab.online>

Szanowny Panie,

Poniżej przesyłam odpowiedzi na Pańskie pytania.

1. Czy w ocenie Związku nagranie wygenerowane w całości przez system sztucznej inteligencji stanowi fonogram w rozumieniu przepisów o prawach pokrewnych?

W rozumieniu ustawy o prawie autorskim i prawach pokrewnych fonogramem jest pierwsze utrwalenie warstwy dźwiękowej wykonania utworu albo innych zjawisk akustycznych, niezależnie od tego w jaki sposób doszło do powstania nagrania. W przypadku produktów wygenerowanych przez modele GenAI nie posiadające prawa do nauki swoich modeli na objętym ochroną repertuarze nie ma jednak mowy o tym, by wygenerowane nagranie (będące, owszem, fonogramem) mogło być legalnie wprowadzone do obrotu i objęte ochroną. Deweloper GenAI dostarczający swój model użytkownikom końcowym nie może przenieść na nich praw, których sam zgodnie z prawem nie nabył. Tylko ten, komu rzeczywiście przysługują prawa autorskie (albo pokrewne: producenckie, wykonawcze), może je skutecznie przenieść lub udzielić licencji – nikt nie może "oddać" ani "wynająć" więcej praw, niż sam posiada.

2. Jeżeli tak — komu przysługują prawa producenta takiego fonogramu: podmiotowi udostępniającemu system generujący, użytkownikowi, który zainicjował utrwalenie, czy innemu podmiotowi?

Prawa producenta przysługują osobie (podmiotowi), który legalnie doprowadził do powstania nagrania. Dotychczas oznaczało to zwykle zainwestowanie w jego powstanie. W przypadku produktów wygenerowanych przez modele AI wykorzystujące do nauki chroniony repertuar bez zgody uprawnionych nie może być mowy o powstaniu nagrania objętego ochroną, ponieważ powstało ono nielegalnie. Jeśli model GenAI korzysta do nauki z nagrań udostępnionych na podstawie umowy licencyjnej z właścicielami praw do tych nagrań, kwestię przynależności praw (ew. ich podziału) regulują te umowy. Aktualnie nie znamy jednak przykładów takich modeli GenAI, które mogłyby generować nagrania i wprowadzać je do obrotu legalnie wykorzystując do nauki chroniony repertuar.

3. Czy Związek zgłasza roszczenia z tytułu odtwarzania takich nagrań w lokalach użytkowych, jeżeli producent fonogramu nie jest reprezentowany przez Związek ani przez organizację, z którą Związek pozostaje w relacji wzajemnej reprezentacji?

Publiczne odtwarzanie nagrań wygenerowanych przez model GenAI działający bez licencji na naukę udzielonej przez posiadaczy praw z zasady jest nielegalne, ponieważ same nagrania powstały z pogwałceniem praw uprawnionych. Wykorzystanie takich wytworów GenAI na polu publicznego odtwarzania będzie więc naruszeniem praw legalnych producentów fonograficznych (oraz innych uprawnionych) i może rodzić po stronie użytkowników zarówno odpowiedzialność deliktową (odszkodowawczą), jak i karną. W przypadku nagrań, które wygenerowały modele GenAI posiadające stosowne umowy licencyjne, zakres ochrony regulują owe umowy. Obecnie nieznane są nam jednak przykłady modeli GenAI posiadających umowy z uprawnionymi na wykorzystanie ich nagrań do szkolenia i wprowadzania do obrotu wygenerowanych w ten sposób fonogramów.

4. Jakie dokumenty Związek uznaje za wystarczające do wykazania przez przedsiębiorcę, że odtwarzane fonogramy pozostają poza zakresem zbiorowego zarządu Związku?

Jedyną akceptowalną formą wykazania uprawnień i legalności wytworów GenAI byłoby przedstawienie dokumentacji potwierdzającej, że deweloper GenAI posiada upoważnienie ze strony właścicieli praw (autorskich i pokrewnych) do nagrań w zakresie ich wykorzystania do szkolenia modelu GenAI, na których to nagraniach model się uczył (co obejmuje też zdolność do wykazania, jakie to były utwory i nagrania). Zwracamy uwagę, że samo oświadczenie o posiadaniu praw nie stanowi wystarczającego i akceptowalnego potwierdzenia tzw. „chain of title”.

5. W jakim zakresie obowiązki wobec Związku objęte są wspólnym poborem wynagrodzeń wykonywanym na polu odtwarzania przez STOART?

Zgodnie z decyzją MKiDN, STOART jest funkcjonalnie wspólnym inkasentem wynagrodzeń z tytułu praw pokrewnych „na polu eksploatacji odtwarzania” i obecnie technicznie inkasuje wynagrodzenia na rzecz ZPAV. STOART nie jest jednak uprawniony do zbiorowego zarządzania prawami do fonogramów.

6. Czy Związek wydaje przedsiębiorcy pisemne potwierdzenie braku obowiązku zawarcia umowy, w przypadku ustalenia, że odtwarzane fonogramy pozostają poza zbiorowym zarządem?

Nie, ZPAV nie wydaje tego typu zaświadczeń.

Z poważaniem
Monika Jadczuk

Subject: Dotyczy: wniosku o zajęcie stanowiska w sprawie praw producentów fonogramów w odniesieniu do nagrań generowanych przez systemy sztucznej inteligencji zwracam się z wnioskiem o zajęcie stanowiska w kwestii, która w mojej ocenie ma dla planowanej działalności znaczenie kluczowe, a bywa pomijana: statusu nagrania wygenerowanego maszynowo jako fonogramu.

Szanowni Państwo,

Buduję platformę Commercial Music Licensing Platform (CMLP), która ma dostarczać przedsiębiorcom muzykę tła do odtwarzania w lokalach użytkowych. Katalog ma być budowany wyłącznie z nagrań o udokumentowanym pochodzeniu, w przeważającej części generowanych przez systemy sztucznej inteligencji. Platforma pozostaje w fazie budowy.

Zwracam uwagę, że nawet przy przyjęciu, iż nagranie takie nie stanowi utworu ani artystycznego wykonania, może pozostawać otwarte pytanie o prawa producenta fonogramu. Uprzejmie proszę zatem o odpowiedź na następujące pytania:

1. Czy w ocenie Związku nagranie wygenerowane w całości przez system sztucznej inteligencji stanowi fonogram w rozumieniu przepisów o prawach pokrewnych?

2. Jeżeli tak — komu przysługują prawa producenta takiego fonogramu: podmiotowi udostępniającemu system generujący, użytkownikowi, który zainicjował utrwalenie, czy innemu podmiotowi?

3. Czy Związek zgłasza roszczenia z tytułu odtwarzania takich nagrań w lokalach użytkowych, jeżeli producent fonogramu nie jest reprezentowany przez Związek ani przez organizację, z którą Związek pozostaje w relacji wzajemnej reprezentacji?

4. Jakie dokumenty Związek uznaje za wystarczające do wykazania przez przedsiębiorcę, że odtwarzane fonogramy pozostają poza zakresem zbiorowego zarządu Związku?
 5. W jakim zakresie obowiązki wobec Związku objęte są wspólnym poborem wynagrodzeń wykonywanym na polu odtwarzania przez STOART?
 6. Czy Związek wydaje przedsiębiorcy pisemne potwierdzenie braku obowiązku zawarcia umowy, w przypadku ustalenia, że odtwarzane fonogramy pozostają poza zbiorowym zarządem?
- Odpowiedź w formie pisemnej ma dla mnie istotne znaczenie — zamierzam przekazywać ją przyszłym klientom jako element dokumentacji potwierdzającej legalność odtwarzanego repertuaru.

Hi,

Thanks for your email and interest in Loudly!

While Loudly-generated music may be used commercially in accordance with the applicable subscription license, the standard Loudly license does not permit the generated tracks to be included in a commercial music library or licensed onward to third-party business customers as standalone music content.

This means that the proposed CMLP model—where Loudly-generated tracks would form part of your catalogue and be licensed to hotels, retail businesses, offices, gyms, or other customers for public playback—is not permitted under the standard subscription license.

The commercial license is intended to allow you to use the music within your own projects and productions. It does not grant the right to resell, sublicense, redistribute, or make the music available as a standalone catalogue or stock/library music service.

Regarding ownership and duration, your rights to use music generated and downloaded under an active qualifying subscription remain subject to the applicable Loudly License Agreement. However, the standard license does not provide exclusive ownership of the generated output.

Regarding collecting-society royalties and public-performance obligations, Loudly does not provide legal or collecting-society advice. Any applicable licensing or royalty requirements may depend on the country, the specific use, and the relevant collecting society. We recommend consulting the relevant organization or a qualified legal professional for guidance.

If you have any further inquiries, please do not hesitate to contact us.

Best regards,

Your Loudly Team

Hello,

One clarification to my note y, before you spend time on it — I framed my first question poorly.

We are not asking to resell Your's catalogue, and we are not looking to act as an intermediary for your repertoire. CMLP's catalogue is our own: we produce it ourselves, and we are evaluating AI music tools for part of that production.

So the question that actually matters is narrower:

If we generate tracks on your platform, may we include them in our own commercial music library and license them onward to our business customers — hotels, retail, offices, gyms — including public performance on their premises?

Many terms permit commercial use of output while separately restricting its redistribution as stock or library music. That second clause is the one I need to understand. A pointer to it is a complete answer.

The other two points from my original note stand: whether the rights in generated output are ours exclusively, worldwide and perpetually (including after a subscription ends), and whether any collecting society royalties would remain payable by us or by our customers.

Apologies for the extra email — I would rather correct the question than have you answer the wrong one.

Jul 31, 2026, 13:35 GMT+2

Hi,

Thank you for reaching out and for providing such a clear overview of CMLP and your intended business model.

Based on the workflow you described, the standard Loudly commercial license does not permit the underlying Loudly-generated music to be sublicensed, redistributed, or made available as a standalone music catalogue to third-party business customers under separate agreements.

Loudly-generated music may be used as part of your own commercial projects, but the music itself cannot be resold, redistributed, or sublicensed as a standalone asset or catalogue.

Regarding public performance and collecting-society requirements, we are unable to confirm that Loudly's standard license exempts businesses from local public-performance licensing requirements or fees charged by organizations such as ZAiKS, GEMA, PRS, or ASCAP. These requirements may depend on the country, the specific use, and the applicable local regulations.

Therefore, the CMLP business model described would not be covered under Loudly's standard commercial license.

Thank you again for considering Loudly and for your understanding.

Best regards,

Hello Kamil

We can confirm that our music is 100% royalty-free. We can provide you with a special license for public performance.

The license could be global. Based on contract duration. Usually we have annual-based contracts.

PROs — if you build your local service, you should have special terms with public rights societies depending on local laws, but you can use our license as proof.

Hello,

Thank you for your interest in AIVA!

If your company generates less than $300 000 in annual revenue and has a team of less than 3 full-time employees, you can use our Pro plan.

If your company generates more than $300 000 and has a team of more than 3 full-time employees, you will need an Enterprise plan.

As our enterprise plans are custom made, I need the following information to provide you more details on the Enterprise plan pricing:

1. Your exact use-case
2. The number of accounts you need (the number of staff that needs to access and use AVA)
3. The number of compositions you need per month
4. The size of your company (the number of full-time employees)
5. The website link to your company

Let's say at the moment your company is small and does not qualify for our enterprise plan, you can use our Pro plan.

In the future, when your company grows and qualifies for an enterprise customer, you can contact us again, and we will create a new custom Enterprise plan tailored to your needs.

Any compositions you created and downloaded in the past under the Pro plan will retain their original Pro license and you can continue using them commercially.

Only the new tracks that you will create under the Enterprise plan, will have the new Enterprise licence.

Please let me know if you have any questions!

We are not asking to resell Your's catalogue, and we are not looking to act as an intermediary for your repertoire. CMLP's catalogue is our own: we produce it ourselves, and we are evaluating AI music tools for part of that production.

So the question that actually matters is narrower:

If we generate tracks on your platform, may we include them in our own commercial music library and license them onward to our business customers — hotels, retail, offices, gyms — including public performance on their premises?

Many terms permit commercial use of output while separately restricting its redistribution as stock or library music. That second clause is the one I need to understand. A pointer to it is a complete answer.

The other two points from my original note stand: whether the rights in generated output are ours exclusively, worldwide and perpetually (including after a subscription ends), and whether any collecting society royalties would remain payable by us or by our customers.

Apologies for the extra email — I would rather correct the question than have you answer the wrong one.

Do contact contact <contact@hardbanrecordslab.online>

Hi Kamil,

Thank you for the additional clarification!

Regarding copyright ownership, sublicensing, and public performance, our official stance remains as previously shared:

- Ownership & Sublicensing: Mureka does not claim ownership or shared rights over the music content generated by users via our API. You retain full rights to the generated tracks, allowing you to use or sublicense them as needed.
- Public Performance & Legal Compliance: Because AI-generated music carries the potential for stylistic or structural convergence, compliance regarding public performance, collecting societies (e.g., ZAIKS, GEMA, PRS, ASCAP), and sublicensing depends on local legal frameworks and judicial practices. We advise users to evaluate these aspects according to their specific target jurisdictions.

Additionally, could you please share your registered Mureka account email address with us? We'd like to check your account status on our system to better assist you.

Since CMLP is currently in the evaluation stage, you are welcome to test out the API and review our technical documentation at <https://platform.mureka.ai/docs/>.

Please feel free to reach out if you have any technical questions during your integration testing!

Best regards,
Mureka API Team

Hi Kamil,

Thank you for clarifying your intended use.

Yes, this type of B2B use is permitted, but only under our Enterprise Annual plan, which is our highest-tier annual plan.

Under this plan, eligible tracks generated while the subscription is active may be:

- Included in your own B2B commercial music library;
- Licensed onward to business customers such as hotels, retail stores, offices, gyms, wellness centers, and similar venues;
- Used for commercial background music and public performance;
- Used worldwide, including after the subscription ends.

Please note that the license is non-exclusive. Any local collecting-society obligations, including ZAiKS, GEMA, PRS, ASCAP, or similar organizations, may vary by country, venue, and use case. These third-party obligations are not waived by our license and should be confirmed with the relevant local organization.

Standard monthly plans and lower-tier annual plans do not include this type of library redistribution or onward sublicensing.

Dear Kamil,

Good day to you! Thank you for contacting us, and sorry for the wait.

Regarding Commercial Use and Copyright, please check the answers below.

- Scope of Use

1. Non-commercial Use: Limited to non-profitable uses such as personal entertainment, learning, and social sharing (e.g., listening to music on Musicful or sharing works on social media platforms like YouTube).
2. Commercial Use: Utilizing music for direct or indirect profit (e.g., distribution to Spotify/Apple Music, soundtracks for advertisements/promotional videos/games/films, and participation in the YouTube Partner Program, etc.), or selling/licensing music.

- Plan Permissions

1. Free/Basic Plan: Non-commercial use only, ownership belongs to Musicful.
2. Standard/Pro Plan: Commercial use permitted, ownership belongs to the user.

Even if you own the rights to use/own these works, they may not legally qualify for copyright protection, as many countries' copyright systems only recognize works created by humans.

- Copyright and Ownership

1. AI music copyrights can be disputed in different countries, so we recommend consulting your local copyright office.
2. If you wrote the lyrics yourself, you own 100% of the copyright and can apply for independent registration.
3. You can also register an entire song with these lyrics. In some regions, copyright offices may recognize you as the song's creator, with Musicful serving as a tool to assist you in your creation.

For further details about copyright and ownership, please review our full terms and conditions here: <https://www.musicful.ai/terms-condition/>. This will clarify the specifics of your rights and responsibilities when it comes to commercial use.

If you decide to purchase, you can enter this coupon code with a favorable price: RL05MI via this discount link: https://www.musicful.ai/pricing/?utm_source=cs_5&utm_medium=cs&utm_campaign=AI-Music

Any further questions, please feel free to contact me directly.

Have a good day and be safe.

Hello, I'm Kamil Skomra, founder of HardbanRecordsLab in Poland. I'm building the Commercial Music Licensing Platform (CMLP) — a B2B background music service for businesses in hospitality, retail, offices, wellness and healthcare. The platform is currently in development. The catalogue is our own — we produce it ourselves, and we are evaluating AI music tools for part of that production. We are not looking to resell anyone else's repertoire. Three things about TopMediai's licence decide whether it fits: 1. Ownership — do we hold the rights in what we generate on your platform, exclusively, worldwide and perpetually, including after a subscription ends? 2. Use as a catalogue — may we include generated tracks in our own commercial music library and license them onward to our business customers? Many terms permit commercial use but separately restrict redistribution as stock or library music, so a pointer to the relevant clause is exactly what I need. 3. Public performance — does the licence cover playback in commercial premises, and would any collecting society royalties (ZAIKS, GEMA, PRS, ASCAP) still be payable by us or by our customers? To be clear: CMLP is at the evaluation stage, so this is not an offer and commits neither side to anything. If your licence does not allow library use, please just tell me — it saves us both time. Hi,

Thank you for reaching out and for providing such a clear overview of CMLP and your intended business model.

Based on the workflow you described, the standard Loudly commercial license does not permit the underlying Loudly-generated music to be sublicensed, redistributed, or made available as a standalone music catalogue to third-party business customers under separate agreements.

Loudly-generated music may be used as part of your own commercial projects, but the music itself cannot be resold, redistributed, or sublicensed as a standalone asset or catalogue.

Regarding public performance and collecting-society requirements, we are unable to confirm that Loudly's standard license exempts businesses from local public-performance licensing requirements or fees charged by organizations such as ZAiKS, GEMA, PRS, or ASCAP. These requirements may depend on the country, the specific use, and the applicable local regulations.

Therefore, the CMLP business model described would not be covered under Loudly's standard commercial license.

Thank you again for considering Loudly and for your understanding.

Best regards,

Your Loudly Team

Hello,

I'm Kamil Skomra, founder of HardbanRecordsLab in Poland. I'm building the Commercial Music Licensing Platform (CMLP) — a B2B background music service for businesses in hospitality, retail, offices, wellness and healthcare. The platform is currently in development.

Before choosing catalogue sources for CMLP, I need to confirm three things about Loudly licence:

1. Sublicensing — can CMLP license your content onward to our own business customers under our own agreements?
2. Public performance — does your licence cover playback in commercial premises, and would any collecting society royalties (ZAiKS, GEMA, PRS, ASCAP) still be payable by us or by our customers?
3. Scope — is the grant worldwide and perpetual, and is this available under your standard commercial terms or only under a custom agreement?

To be clear: CMLP is at the evaluation stage, so this is not an offer and commits neither side to anything. If sublicensing is not permitted under your licence, please just tell me — it saves us both time. I'm happy to sign a mutual NDA before you share anything.

Re: CMLP — licensing question: sublicensing & public performance rights

Do contact@hardbanrecordslab.online

Dear Kamil,

Thank you for the clear and detailed introduction to CMLP.

Under our standard Flow Music commercial terms, a paid subscriber may use music generated through Flow Music in their own commercial projects. However, the standard license does not include the right to sublicense, resell, redistribute, or offer the generated music catalogue to third-party business customers under separate agreements.

Public-performance and collecting-society obligations may also vary depending on the country, venue and specific use. Therefore, under our standard plan, we cannot guarantee that fees to organizations such as ZAiKS, GEMA, PRS or ASCAP would never apply.

For the B2B licensing model you described, we would need to discuss a separate written enterprise agreement covering:

- sublicensing rights;
- territories and license duration;
- customer and venue types;
- catalogue scope and expected usage;
- reporting and content-protection arrangements;
- allocation of public-performance and collecting-society obligations.

We are open to reviewing this opportunity under a mutual NDA.

To help us evaluate it, could you please provide:

- your initial target countries;
- estimated number and types of business customers;
- expected catalogue size and monthly music volume;
- how the music would be delivered and tracked;
- your proposed commercial model and estimated budget.

Once we have this information, we can determine whether a custom worldwide or long-term license is feasible and arrange a short call.

Best regards,

Hi Kamil,

Thank you for reaching out to the Mureka API team and sharing details about CMLP!

Regarding your questions on copyright ownership and licensing terms:

- Ownership & Sublicensing: Mureka does not claim ownership or shared rights over the music content generated by users via our API. You retain full rights to the generated tracks, allowing you to use or sublicense them as needed.
- Public Performance & Legal Compliance: Because AI-generated music carries the potential for stylistic or structural convergence, compliance regarding public performance, collecting societies (e.g., ZAiKS, GEMA, PRS, ASCAP), and sublicensing depends on local legal frameworks and judicial practices. We advise users to evaluate these aspects according to their specific target jurisdictions.

To help us better understand your integration needs and evaluate suitable API tiering, could you please share a bit more detail on the following?

- Application Scenario: Briefly describe how Mureka API will be integrated into CMLP.
- Expected Generation Volume: What is your estimated daily average music generation volume (or API calls per day)?
- Projected Budget: Your expected monthly budget for API usage once launched.

Looking forward to your reply!

Best regards,
